

Kylon Collins started playing lacrosse in 2016 as a freshman at Archer High School, Gwinnett County Ga. His background in basketball and football directly translated to his success on the lacrosse field as a new player. One of his favorite things about lacrosse is how it overlaps with so many other sports. Kylon continued his career at Emmanuel College, a Division II school in north Ga where he was a 2-way midfielder who played both offense and defense. He now plays in adult leagues in the Atlanta area and is head coach of Druid Lakes Youth Lacrosse 11U team. Kylon's main goal in coaching is to help kids build the basic fundamentals, understanding, and skills so that they can have fun and also produce at competitive levels, if they chose too.
