

2020 Continental Little League Registration

The goal of this document is to answer your many questions about registering for the upcoming Little League season. Additional questions may be sent to Registration@FlagstaffCLL.com. All information in this document is subject to change based on either Little League rule changes, or local board changes allowed within Little League rules.

Little League uses a “League Age” to determine what divisions players are eligible for. League age is defined as the players age on August 31 of the current year. This is a bit confusing as a player who turns 8 on August 30, 2020 (and will be 7 through the entire playing season), is considered League Age 8. A calculator can be found here: <https://www.littleleague.org/play-little-league/determine-league-age/>

To register, you must create an account (or log into your previous account) at FlagstaffCLL.com.

League Age Division Eligibility: (See Division information later for more information)

Less than 4: Not eligible to play in Little League

4 or 5: Players must play in the Tball Division.

6: May Play in A if they have at least one year of Tball experience.

7: May Play in A or AA.

8: May try out for the AAA division. If a player is not drafted to AAA or a parent elects to register them for AA, they will play in the AA division.

9: Should try out for AAA. All undrafted players (or players that do not tryout) will be placed in AA.

10: Player should tryout on tryout day with all other 10-year-olds. At the tryout, parents must declare whether they wish their 10-year-old to be Eligible for the Majors Draft. This is not a guarantee that they will be selected to Majors. Players who are not selected in Majors will be placed in the AAA Draft. Players who do not tryout or are not drafted to AAA will play AA.

11: Players who are not chosen for Majors or who do not tryout must be selected in the AAA draft.

12: Players should tryout on the tryout dates and must be selected in the Majors draft.

13-15: Players are eligible to play in the combined West Flagstaff Juniors Division. Registration for this division is being handled by West Flagstaff at their website: <http://www.westflagstafflittleleague.org/>

Divisions:

T- Ball: 4-6 year olds play in classic T-ball format. All week day games start at 5:30 PM on the CLL T-Ball Field. Saturday Games before 3 PM are also common. Players are required to provide their own glove. The league will provide T-shirts and Hats for team uniforms as well as other safety equipment. Bats are usually shared and players that have them are encouraged to bring them. There is little reason for players to invest in baseball pants or cleats at this age. Players may request to play with other friends or with a specific coach in this division.

A (Single A): 6-7 Year Olds play in a developmental league where coaches utilize a pitching machine to develop batting skills. This division is not a competitive division and development of each individual is the goal. Players are required to provide their own glove. The league will provide T-shirts and Hats for team uniforms as well as other safety equipment. Bats are usually shared and players that have them are encouraged to bring them. There is little reason for players to invest in baseball pants or cleats at this age. Players may request to play with other friends or with a specific coach in this division.

AA (Double A): 7-10 Year Olds play in a developmental league where players and coaches pitch to the players to develop batting skills. This division is not a competitive division and development of each individual is the goal with team elements being reinforced. Players are required to provide their own glove. The league will provide T-shirts and Hats for team uniforms as well as other safety equipment. Bats are usually shared and players that have them are encouraged to bring them. Baseball pants and cleats are optional at this age and will be provided by the player if they desire them. Players may request to play with other friends or with a specific coach in this division.

AAA (Triple A): 8-11 Year Olds play in a competitive, developmental league where players pitch. This division is a competitive division and development of each individual is the goal with team elements being reinforced. Players are required to provide their own glove. The league will provide T-shirts and Hats for team uniforms as well as other safety equipment. Bats are usually shared and players that have them are encouraged to bring them. Baseball pants and cleats are suggested at this age and will be provided by the player if they desire them. Players are selected to teams through a draft process that will be confidential.

Majors: 10-12 Year Olds play in a competitive league where players pitch. This division is a competitive division and development of each individual is the goal with team elements being reinforced. Players are required to provide their own glove. The league will provide Jerseys and Hats for team uniforms as well as other safety equipment. Bats are usually shared and players that have them are encouraged to bring them. Baseball pants and cleats are suggested at this age and will be provided by the player if they desire them. Players are selected to teams through a draft process that will be confidential.
