

Carrollton COVID-19 Policy

If a player has a new cough or a fever in the last 48 hours, he or she should not attend any Carrollton activities. Any player that is sick, should also stay home. We do not want to encourage kids to come to the ballpark and “see if they get better.” It is okay to miss a game or practice if they are sick. We guarantee that missing because of sickness will not effect the kids playing time or spot on any Carrollton team.

Any fever by any player or household member of a player, would require a COVID-19 test. This can be ordered through the player’s family physician or through the Carrollton physicians. While awaiting the results, they player shall not participate in any team activities, including games.

If the player tests positive, then they must be quarantined from the team for 14 days and will not allowed to participate in any team activities. If a player is positive and has exposed the entire team, then the team activities will be stopped until all of the players and coaches have a negative test or have been symptom free for 14 days.

We also ask that if a child becomes sick in the middle of a game or weekend series, that they do not “hang out” in the dugout to support their team. They need to go home.
