

AVON JUNIOR ATHLETIC ASSOCIATION

Mason Pike

Mason Pike and his family have called Avon home since 2006. Originally from Champaign, Illinois, Mason and his wife Erika are proud parents of 8-year-old twins who are active in AJAA sports. Mason first became involved with AJAA as an assistant coach for his son's little league baseball team. Since then he has continued to volunteer as a baseball and basketball coach. He also frequently volunteers with the Boys Scouts of America and Special Olympics.

Mason's interest in athletics extends to his professional career as the associate director of business operations for the NCAA.

Since joining the NCAA in 2011, he has overseen the enforcement division's business operations and has worked with universities and colleges nationwide on NCAA compliance matters. Mason also teaches amateur sports law at Indiana University Robert H. McKinney School of Law

Mason is a strong supporter of youth sports and believes they provide boys and girls, as well as young men and young women, the opportunity to develop leadership, communication, collaboration and problem-solving skills. He also believes kids should be allowed to be kids and that the focus of youth sports should be to provide the youth with a positive growth building experience.

In addition to his experience with the NCAA, Mason is also a "recovering attorney" and practiced administrative law specializing in regulatory compliance and administrative appeals. When he is not working or volunteering, Mason enjoys spending time with his family as well as cycling, golfing and enjoying the outdoors.
